Cellular Safety

Don't allow yourself to be distracted.

Using a cellular telephone in a vehicle can increase your chance of a traffic accident.

Don't allow yourself to be distracted from safe driving by dialing or talking on the telephone.

Here are some reminders for driving safely with a cellular:

- Do not dial while you are driving. Wait until you are stopped at a traffic light or until you can pull off the road.
- Choose a cellular phone with speed-dialing and re-dial features to decrease the amount of attention you give to dialing.
- Don't get involved in intense conversations which will take your mind off your driving.
- Don't hesitate to interrupt the call to deal with a driving situation needing your full attention.

- Don't answer your telephone in difficult driving situations.

A cellular telephone, used carefully, can increase your safety, allowing you to call for help without getting out of your vehicle. You can also use it to report traffic accidents and road hazards for the benefit of other motorists. But use your cellular safely and don't let it take your mind off your driving.
